

Internal Memo -- Carrier Risk Indicators

Confidential -- Operations & Compliance | v1.0 | Jan 2026

Purpose

This memo helps Operations and Compliance distinguish an honest billing mistake from a pattern worth escalating. It complements the Accessorial Charge Audit & Dispute Policy -- that policy defines the dollar/time thresholds for a single invoice; this memo defines when a carrier's behavior across multiple invoices should be treated as a risk signal.

Indicators of Elevated Carrier Risk

1. Repeated detention overbilling above the policy tolerance within a rolling 90-day window (see the Repeat Pattern Rule in the Dispute Policy).
2. A load tendered to one carrier, then re-confirmed for pickup under a different MC number shortly before the scheduled pickup time -- a classic double-brokering signal.
3. Invoice remittance (bank/payment) details changing between submissions without any prior notice from the carrier.
4. A carrier's safety rating dropping to "Conditional" at the same time as any open billing dispute.

Recommended Action

A carrier meeting two or more of the above indicators should be placed on the Elevated Risk list. Per the Dispute Policy, any carrier on the Elevated Risk list requires Tier 2 (manager-level) review for all future invoices, not only the ones that are individually flagged. Placing a carrier on this list always requires human approval -- it is never an automatic action.
